

Mrs. Suruchi Lal took over as the Junior School In-charge on 1st October 2016.

Mrs. Lal has been with Sanskriti School since 1999 and has contributed to its growth almost since its inception. Before joining Sanskriti, she taught in various Mission schools in Jammu and Kashmir, Bihar and West Bengal, as well as in the Mother's International School, Delhi.

Mrs. Suruchi Lal's teaching style has always been characterized by a lot of creativity and new learning methodologies. She introduced, and later institutionalized, the use of the 'Quality Circle Time Model' in the Junior School, which has helped nurture creativity and positive relationships with students from diverse backgrounds. Apart from teaching, she has also been actively involved in curriculum development, planning, and teacher training. She believes that teaching in today's classroom requires a teacher to incorporate innovative techniques to address the whole child- heart and mind, motivating them to learn and become independent lifelong learners.

Before taking over as Junior School In-charge, she was the Academic In-charge for many years. A highly committed and devoted educationist, she has taught the fast-track classes held after school designed specifically to support students from the economically weaker sections of the society. She was awarded the "Distinguished Teacher Award" by the Rotary Club of Delhi for the year 2012-13.

Mrs. Lal completed her schooling from the reputed Maharani Gayatri Devi girl's school, Jaipur. She graduated with a first division from Lady Irwin College, University of Delhi and later pursued B.Ed. from the University of Delhi.

Summing up her approach to education, she says, "As teachers, we are entrusted with the responsibility of shaping minds. I believe that every child is unique, and it is our duty to foster success, acceptance, and joy for the young learners."
