April- May*Section A (Reading)*1. Read the following poem and answer the questions that follow:*Winter Nights

Late lies the wintry sun a-bed
 A frosty, fiery sleepy head;
 Blinks but an hour or two; and then,
 A blood-red orange, sets again.
 Before the stars have left the skies,
 At morning in the dark I rise;
 And shivering in my nakedness
 By the cold candle, bathe and dress.
 Close by the jolly fire I sit,
 To warm my frozen bones a bit;
 Or with a reindeer sled, explore
 The colder countries round the door.
 When to go out, my nurse doth wrap
 Me in my comforter and cap,
 The cold wind burns my face and blows
 Its frosty pepper up my nose.
 Black are my steps on silver sod;
 Thick blows my frosty breath abroad;
 And tree and house, and hill and lake,
 Are frosted like a wedding cake.

1. Complete the summary of the poem using just one word:

The poet lives in a very cold place. In winter the sun a) _____ for just an hour or so and very soon, it is sunset. It is compared to a b) _____ person who doesn't want to leave his bed. The poet, a small child, has to get up c) _____. It is bitterly cold and the candle does not provide any d) _____. He e) _____ as he bathes and then gets ready for school. For a few minutes he sits by the fire to warm himself. He imagines he is an f) _____ on a reindeer sled, going around the world. Then the nurse wraps a muffler around him and puts his cap on his head. It is time to go.

2. Which line tells you that the poet lives in the countryside and not in a city?

2. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Shakespeare's Globe Theatre

Londoners loved going to see plays. During the time that Shakespeare lived in London, plays were as popular as movies as movies are today. People would come from miles around to spend a few hours in the theatre.

The greatest theatre of London was the Globe. This is where William Shakespeare's plays were first performed.

The Globe was specially built for London audiences. The stage was a platform built on the ground. The space in front of the stage was called the 'pit'. Farmers from around London could come into town and, for a penny, stand in the pit close to the actors. To the sides of the stage were seats. Merchants could pay a few pennies and sit in them. Behind the pit and to the sides above the seats were the galleries. The galleries were special places with comfortable chairs. A seat in the galleries might cost as much as twelve pennies.

To understand what the Globe was like you have to remember that there was no electricity in those days. Plays were performed in the daytime. The theatre had to be built to let in light. So there was no roof over the stage. The pit and the stage were open to the sky.

There was no curtain in front of the stage and almost no scenery on it. The actors had to make the play seem real by their words and movements. The audience had to be told what the scenes were. Children would walk across the stage carrying signs. The signs would say 'Forest' or 'Town'. All parts were played by men, and young boys with shrill and uncracked voices would take on female roles. The actors would wear colourful costumes, but they had to rely on their skill to entertain the audience. The audience would get involved too and would often shout encouragement, disapproval or directions to the actors!

At the back of the stage was the upper stage. This was used as an extra room, like a bedroom in a house. Above the upper stage sat the musicians.

Besides musicians, there were trumpeters. They might be part of a play, but their main job was to announce the beginning of a performance. Three loud blasts would signal the start of a play.

The loud blasts of the trumpets were not the only loud sounds in the Globe. The people were noisy too. Going to the theatre was like going to a carnival. Some people would bring food and others would buy from the various vendors doing brisk business there. A loud cheer would be heard when the trumpets sounded. Shouts, laughter, jeers and comments punctuated the play.

A special treat for the audience would be to see William Shakespeare act in a play. But most of the time he would stand to the side of the stage from where he could direct his actors. The audience loved Shakespeare and his plays, and they loved their Globe theatre.

Section B (Writing)*Formal Letter*Letter of Complaint*IMPORTANT POINTS

- A Formal Letter is written in formal language. Sentences should be short and to the point.
- Use passive voice wherever possible.
- State the purpose clearly and concisely.
- Be positive and polite. The tone of a letter of complaint should not be aggressive or insulting, as this would annoy the reader and not encourage them to solve the problem. In addition, questions like “Why can’t you get this right?” should not be included.
- Write one idea in one paragraph.
- Always plan your letter. State the reason for writing the letter clearly and present the facts in logical order.
- Subject should be brief and related to the issue of concern.

AVOID THESE COMMON ERRORS

- Don’t write the entire letter in one paragraph.
- Students need to realize that letters are meant to draw attention of the concerned authorities to a particular problem.
- Don’t write your’s instead of yours.
- When writing the address don’t end each line with a comma.

Letter of Complaint: Format

Sender’s Address

(leave a blank line)

Date(to be written with the month followed by date and then year)

Receiver’s Name (if given, otherwise ignore)

Receiver’s Designation

Receiver’s Address

(leave another blank line)

Salutation ( Dear Sir)

(leave a blank line)

Subject (always to be underlined—brief and related to the topic. No longer than 6/7 words. This should identify the issue and name of product, service, with purchase or reference number, if applicable)

(leave a blank line)

Now start the letter from the margin

Para 1: State the simple facts, with relevant dates and details clearly. Make sure you include all the necessary facts that will justify why your complaint should be resolved.

For Example: The above item number PQ 37659 was delivered to the above mentioned address on Dec 13, 2010 and developed a fault in the machinery on Dec 20, 2010.

Para2: Explain how the fault or malfunction caused inconvenience.

For Example: This put our firm in a difficult position, as we had to make emergency purchases to fulfill our commitments to all our customers. This caused us considerable inconvenience.

Para 3: Next state what you would like to happen—a positive request for the reader to react to.

For Example: I am writing to request you to replace the defective items with immediate effect and to ensure that such errors do not happen in the future.

Also include (usually best as a sign off point) something complimentary about the organization and/or its products, service, or people.

For Example: I've long been a user of your products/services and until now have always regarded you as an excellent supplier/organization.

Closing: Give a complimentary close.

For Example: I have every faith, therefore, that you will do what you can to rectify this situation/I look forward to prompt action.

Signatory

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr. Brown

Subject: Complaint Regarding Order No ACW768195

I am writing to inform you that the goods we ordered from your company vide order no ACW768195 on July 12, 2010 have not been supplied correctly.

We placed an order with your firm for 12,000 Ultra super long-life batteries. The consignment arrived yesterday, but contained only 11,200 batteries.

The error put our firm in a difficult position, as we had to make emergency purchases to fulfill our commitments to all our customers. This caused us considerable inconvenience.

I am writing to request you to supply the shortfall with immediate effect and to ensure that such errors do not happen again or we may have to look elsewhere for future supplies.

We have had a long standing business relationship and until now have always regarded you as an excellent supplier.

I look forward to hearing from you at the earliest.

Yours sincerely

The Mayor
Mumbai Municipal Corporation
Mumbai

Dear Sir/Madam

Subject: Complaint about Inadequate Potable Water

Through this letter I wish to draw your attention towards the plight of our colony. Though we had been assured of regular supply of clean drinking water at the time of allotment, nothing has been done so far.

The drinking water supplied to our colony is polluted. It emits a foul smell. The water and sewage lines which were laid some years ago intersect each other at various vital points. There seems to be leakage or seepage in these pipes resulting in unhygienic and infected water reaching our homes. Some samples of the water are being sent for analysis.

It is a well established fact that polluted water is the cause of many diseases, which harms the health and well-being of the citizens. I, thus, request you to ensure that our colony is provided with hygienic and clean drinking water facilities.

Yours sincerely

Arun Kumar

1. The letter given below has been scrambled. Identify the parts of the letter and rewrite it in the right order.

I thought things could not get worse, but I was fooling myself. Now that you are at school, I have to endure the most ridiculous, damaging hairstyles. Pigtails, plaits, ponytails and coloured hair spray on sports carnival days!

Subject: A Hairy Problem

DEMANDS: Conditioner every second day
Regular hot oil treatments
Proper haircuts from my choice of hair dresser
A thorough brushing morning and night
No hairstyles that cause me to be pulled at painful angles

Your hair
On the top of your head

I look forward to your reply

I am writing to complain about the treatment I have been receiving from you over the course of your life.

Unless these demands are met, I will begin falling out at the rate of 1000 strands per day. By Christmas you will be bald! So I suggest you take this seriously unless you want your head to look like a bowling ball.

Active – Passive Voice

In the active sentence the focus is on the doer of the action. Therefore it is in Active Voice.

In the passive sentence the focus is on the receiver of the action. Therefore it is in Passive Voice.

The Active Voice

The active voice is more direct than the passive.

For Example: The boy hit the ball.

The subject (the boy) + an active verb (hit) + object (the ball).

Sentences in active voice are generally clearer and more direct than those in the passive voice.

The Passive Voice

1. The passive voice calls attention to the receiver of the action rather than the performer.

For Example: The dog was hit by a stone.

2. The passive voice points out the receiver of the action when the performer is unknown or unimportant.

For Example: The letters will be posted.

3. It avoids calling attention to the performer of the action (known as the 'institutional passive')

For Example: The donations will be collected on Monday.

	Active Voice	Passive Voice
1.	He writes a book.	A book is written by him.
2.	He is writing a book.	A book is being written by him.
3.	He has written a book.	A book has been written by him.
4.	He wrote a book.	A book was written by him.
5.	He was writing a book.	A book was being written by him.
6.	He had written a book.	A book had been written by him.
7.	He will write a book.	A book will be written by him.

Adverbs

In very simple words an “Adverb” is a word that describes a verb. It tells us about an action, or the way the action is performed.

Adverbs may be classified into eight types:

1. Manner: eg: bravely, fast, happily, hard, quickly, well
2. Place: eg: by, down, here, near, there, up
3. Time: eg: now, soon, still, then, today, yet
4. Frequency: eg: always, never, occasionally, often, twice
5. Sentence: eg: certainly, definitely, luckily, surely
6. Degree: eg: fairly, hardly, rather, quite, too, very
7. Interrogative: eg: when? Where? Why?
8. Relative: eg: when, where, why

FORMATION OF ADVERBS:

Many adverbs of manner and some adverbs of degree are formed by adding “ly” to the corresponding adjectives. For eg: grave—gravely, immediate—immediately, slow—slowly.

- a. A final “y” changes to “i”: happy—happily
- b. A final “e” is retained: extreme—extremely

Exceptions: true, due, whole become truly, duly and wholly.

- c. Adjectives ending in able/ible drop the final “e” and add “y”: capable, capably & sensible, sensibly.
- d. Adjectives ending in a vowel + “L” follow the usual rule: Beautiful, beautifully & final, finally.

Exceptions:

The adverb of “good is well”.

“Kindly” can be an adjective or adverb, but other adjectives ending in “ly” (For Example: friendly, likely, lonely, etc.) cannot be used as adverbs and have no adverb form. To supply this deficiency we use a similar adverb or adverb phrase:

Likely (adjective)      friendly (adjective)
Probably (adverb)      in a friendly manner (adverb phrase)

Some adverbs have a narrower meaning than their corresponding adjectives or differ from them.

For Example: coldly, coolly, hotly, warmly are used mainly for expressing feelings:
We received them coldly. (in an unfriendly way)

They denied the accusation hotly. (indignantly)
 She welcomed us warmly. (in a friendly way)

Section D (Literature)

Anne Bakes a Cake

Matthew and Marilla Cuthbert are unmarried siblings who live on their ancestral farm, Green Gables, in the quiet town of Avonlea in Prince Edward Island, Canada. Matthew is sixty, and since he is getting too old to handle the farm work on his own, the Cuthberts decide to adopt an orphan boy to help him. The orphanage sent the eleven-year-old Anne Shirley by mistake. Anne's talkativeness and spirit charm Matthew, who shyly tells Marilla that he wants to keep her. Marilla hesitates at first, but after a trial period, she agrees to let Anne stay on. Anne tries hard to oblige Marilla and follow her rules of social conduct, but she makes many mistakes, using liniment instead of vanilla in a cake.

Avonlea welcomes Mr. Allan and his pretty young wife into the community. Anne admires Mrs. Allan, who teaches Anne's Sunday school class, because she encourages the students to ask many questions. Marilla invites Mr. and Mrs. Allan to tea, and works for days preparing a generous spread of food for the young couple. Marilla allows Anne to bake a layer cake. Even though Anne has baked many cakes, she is nervous nonetheless. The cake comes out of the oven looking beautiful, and Anne is proud to serve it to her new hero, Mrs. Allan. Mrs. Allan can hardly swallow the cake, but she eats it to spare Anne's feelings. When Marilla tastes the cake herself, she asks Anne what ingredients she used. Marilla discovers that Anne accidentally used anodyne liniment instead of vanilla, making the cake taste awful. Anne is mortified and runs upstairs, throws herself on the bed, and weeps. Mrs. Allan cheers Anne up, and Anne begins to see some good in the embarrassing situation, saying at least she never makes the same mistake twice. She is relieved to think that once she has made all possible mistakes, she will be done making mistakes for good.

Questions

1. Write a character sketch of Anne.
2. What preparations did Anne and Marilla make to welcome Mrs. And Mr. Allan?
3. Why was Anne so apprehensive about their visit?
4. Mrs. Allan took a mouthful of hers and a strange expression crossed her face- but she didn't say a word and steadily ate away at it.
  - a. Who was Mrs. Allan?
  - b. Why did a strange expression cross her face?
  - c. Why did she steadily ate the cake without uttering a word?
5. Point out instances from the story that indicate that Anne worries too much about what may happen.

Section A (Reading)

1. Read the following poem carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Anger

Anger in its time and place
 May assume a kind of grace.
 It must have some reason in it,
 And not last beyond a minute.
 If to further lengths it go,
 It does into malice grow.
 'tis the difference we see
 'twixt the serpent and the bee.
 If the latter you provoke
 It inflicts a hasty stroke
 Puts you to some little pain,
 But it never stings again.
 Close in tuften bush or brake
 Lurks the poison –swelled snake
 Nursing up its cherished wrath;
 In the purlieux of path
 In the cold, or in the warm,

Mean good, or mean him harm
Whensoever fate may bring you,
The vile snake will always sting you.

1. How is malice different from anger?

2. Read the following paragraph carefully.

Born in Kausauli on 19th May 1934 in pre-independence India, Ruskin Bond is the quintessential Indian writer in English and a lifelong lover of India. Bond spent his early childhood in Jamnagar, Dehradun and Shimla. His parents divorced when he was young and he had a rather solitary childhood. In 1944, Ruskin Bond's father passed away and he was raised by his mother. He completed his education at Bishop Cotton in Shimla in 1952.

Ruskin's love for books and writing had come early to him, since his father always surrounded him with books and encouraged him to write little descriptions of the surrounding natural beauty, as he took Rusty on hikes around the hills. It was after school, that he began to carve out a niche as a writer.

Soon after schooling, Ruskin left India to live in London. There, he took up odd jobs like working for a travel agency and a photography shop. He lived there for four years, but memories of India continuously haunted and overwhelmed him.

Bond wrote his first story, 'Room on the Roof' at the age of 17. It won him instant recognition and also the John Liewellyn Rhys Prize in 1957, awarded to a British Commonwealth writer under 30. The book captured the vibrant mystique of the Himalayas, and evidently earned him his passage to India too. With the money he earned from this book, he bought a ticket to India- his home for the rest of his life. Upon returning, Bond chose to settle in the charming landscape of Dehradun and begin his career as a freelance writer. He wrote 'Vagrants in the Valley', as a sequel to 'The Room on the Roof'. In the following year several of his non-fiction books were also published by Penguin India. Bringing the past and the present together is Ruskin Bond's specialty. A career, now spanning four decades, has won him tremendous critical acclaim. His writing is full with unassuming humour and quiet wisdom. His stories are sensitive and manifest a deep love for nature, Indian people and their eccentricities.

In 1987, the Indian Council for Child Education recognized his pioneering role in the growth of children's literature in India, and awarded him the Sahitya Akademi Award in 1992 for 'Our Trees still Grow in Dehra'. He won the Padma Shri in 1999.

Bond's novel 'The Flight of Pigeons' has been adapted into the acclaimed Merchant Ivory film Junoon. Short stories from collections such as 'The Night Train at Deoli, 'Time Stops at Shamli' have been included in school text books.

In the year 2007, the Bollywood director Vishal Bhardwaj made a heart-warming film based on his popular novel for children, 'The Blue Umbrella'. The movie won the National Award for the Best Children's Film. Media shy, Bond prefers the quiet life of the hills and currently lives in Landour, Mussoorie's well-known Ivy Cottage, which has been home since 1964.

Now answer the questions given below:

1. Complete the following statements in your own words.

Section B (Writing)*Article Writing

An article presents information on a variety of themes in a long and sustained writing piece. It usually expresses diverse opinion on some issue of social interest.

POINTS TO REMEMBER

- Give a title at the top followed by the writer's name.
- Title should catch the reader's attention and capture the theme.
- An article should contain:
  - An introduction to the theme/topic in one paragraph.
  - The body of the article discusses the causes/effects/present state of things in two or three paragraphs.
  - The conclusion carries suggestions/measures to improve the situation, personal observations, predictions and summing up of the main points raised in the article.
- The article should be well organized, systematic and logical.
- Write simple short sentences with emphasis on flow and connectivity.
- Pay attention to grammar, vocabulary and spellings.
- Make your article as interesting as possible. Originality of ideas is required.
- Read newspaper articles regularly and be in touch with what's happening around the world.

Guidelines for Better Writing

An article is a long writing piece consisting of several paragraphs. Each paragraph is made of several sentences all dealing with one central idea or point.

- Most sentences should be of medium length, but all should not be of the same length. Your essay will be more interesting if you use a mix of long, medium and short sentences.
- Avoid very long sentences. Some writers use long and complex sentences that are both easy to understand and grammatically correct. However, as students, long sentences tend to become muddled and difficult to follow.
- Get rid of unnecessary words. For instance, what's the need to say, 'We were in Delhi for a period of three months when you can easily say the same thing by 'We were in Delhi for three months.' Another example is, 'The population of India is expected to increase in the coming future' and 'The population of India is expected to increase in the future.'
- Replace phrases with single appropriate words wherever possible.

For Example: The teacher talked to Rahul in a kind way. → The teacher talked to Rahul kindly.

- Use the passive voice only when absolutely necessary. The active voice is usually better.

For Example: The gardener was given instructions by the housekeeper to do the watering of the plants in the evening. (Passive) Whereas the active will be → The housekeeper instructed the gardener to water the plants in the evening.

- Do not repeat the same words and phrases too often in a paragraph.
Manjit is a nice girl. She lives in a nice house with her parents, her sister and a very nice cat.
- Long, difficult and fancy sounding words are not always better than simpler, shorter ones. Usually the opposite is true.

For Example: More than a hundred individuals applied for the job. → More than a hundred people applied for the job.

- Avoid using reason is that. Instead use because. Try not to begin sentences with 'there is' or 'there are'.

The reason I am sad is that my friend has moved to a new school. → I am sad because my friend has moved to a new school.

There is a man waiting for you. → A man is waiting for you.

There are many ways of solving the problem. → We can solve the problem in many ways.

- Use action verbs instead of abstract nouns.

For Example: The police are engaged in an investigation of the crime. → The police are investigating the crime.

We have expectations that the completion of the construction will be achieved in November. → We expect that the construction will be complete in November

Write short articles on the following topics.

1. The Importance of Dressing Properly
2. 'Today's Fashion' compared to the time your parents were young.
3. Delhi: a City of Unruly Traffic and Road Rage
4. Discipline in Schools

Section C (Grammar)

Infinitives and Participles

Infinitive is the verb form expressed as: to + the root form of the verb. It expresses the purpose of the action.

Examples:

1. I want to go.
2. I want you to go home.
3. We want to see the play.
4. To see a shooting star is good luck.
5. To fight against those odds would be ridiculous.

Split infinitives occur when additional words are included between to and the verb in an infinitive. Many readers find a single adverb splitting the infinitive to be acceptable, but this practice should be avoided in formal writing.

Examples:

I like to on a nice day walk in the woods. * (unacceptable)

On a nice day, I like to walk in the woods. (revised)

I needed to quickly gather my personal possessions. (acceptable in informal contexts)

I needed to gather my personal possessions quickly. (revised for formal contexts)

A participle is a verb that is used as an adjective and most often ends in -ing or -ed. Since they function as adjectives, participles modify nouns or pronouns. There are two types of participles: present participles and past participles. Present participles end in -ing. Past participles end in -ed, -en, -d, -t, or -n, as in the words asked, eaten, saved, dealt, and seen.

- The crying baby had a wet diaper.
- Shaken, he walked away from the wrecked car.
- The burning log fell off the fire.
- Smiling, she hugged the panting dog.

Section D (Literature)*Merchant of Venice

In Belmont, Portia shows the prince of Morocco to the caskets, where he will attempt to win her hand by guessing which chest contains her portrait. The first casket, made of gold, is inscribed with the words, "Who chooseth me shall gain what many men desire" (II.vii.37). The second, made of silver, reads, "Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deserves" (II.vii.23). The third, a heavy leaden casket, declares, "Who chooseth me must give and hazard all he hath" (II.vii.16). After much pondering, the prince chooses the gold casket, reasoning that only the most precious metal could house the picture of such a beautiful woman. He opens the chest to reveal a skull with a scroll in its eye socket. After reading a short poem chastising him for the folly of his choice, the prince makes a hasty departure. Portia is glad to see him go.

The prince of Arragon is in Belmont to try his luck at winning Portia's hand in marriage. When brought to the caskets, he selects the silver one, confident that he "shall get as much as he deserves". Inside, he finds a portrait of a blinking idiot, and a poem that condemns him as a fool. Soon after he departs, a messenger arrives to tell Portia that a promising young Venetian, who seems like the perfect suitor, has come to Belmont to try his luck at the casket game. Hoping that it is Bassanio, Portia and Nerissa go out to greet the new suitor.

Portia begs Bassanio to delay choosing between the caskets for a day or two. If Bassanio chooses incorrectly, Portia reasons, she will lose his company. Bassanio insists that he make his choice now, to avoid prolonging the torment of living without Portia as his wife. Portia orders that music be played while her love makes his choice. Like the suitors who have come before him, Bassanio carefully examines the three caskets and puzzles over their inscriptions. He rejects the gold casket, saying that "[t]he world is still deceived with ornament", while the silver he deems a "pale and common". After much debate, Bassanio picks the lead casket, which he opens to reveal Portia's portrait, along with a poem congratulating him on his choice and confirming that he has won Portia's hand.

The happy couple promises one another love and devotion, and Portia gives Bassanio a ring that he must never part with, as his removal of it will signify the end of his love for her. Nerissa and Gratiano congratulate them.

1. Why did the prince of Morocco choose the gold casket?
2. "Thus hath the candle sing'd the moth."
  - a. Who said the above lines?
  - b. Why did the speaker say this? Explain.
3. What were the reasons for the Prince of Arragon choosing the silver casket?
4. "The lott'ry of my destiny bars me the right of voluntary choosing."
  - a. Who said the above lines and to whom?
  - b. What does she mean when she says 'the lott'ry of my destiny'?
  - c. What bars her from choosing?
5. "O love, be moderate, alloy thy ecstasy in measure rain thy joy, scant this excess!"
  - a. Why does she say the above lines?
6. Why did Bassania reject the gold casket?
7. "And you shall see 'tis purchased by the weight. Which therein works a miracle in nature, making them lightest that wear most of it."

Explain the above lines.

Poison Tree

Poison Tree forms a part of William Blake's collection of poetry called the Songs of Innocence and Experience.

In this poem, the central metaphor explains the truth of human nature. It tells us how anger can be dispelled by good will or nurtured to become deadly poison.

The poem depicts with terrible honesty, the hatred of which man is capable and the cunning with which we can conceal our anger. This anger is not the anger we call 'in the heat of the moment,' but 'wrath', a brooding, festering anger.

Perhaps the most shocking word is 'glad'. This is not innocent gladness, but almost devilish self-satisfaction of the one poisoning. This is triumphant gloating with no signs of guilt and remorse.

As with many of his poems, Blake wants to impart a moral lesson. He suggests that holding a grudge can be fatal to one's self as well as to the object of anger. Remaining silent about our anger only hinders our personal and spiritual growth making us bitter and that a grudge left unchecked becomes dangerous, even murderous, and sometimes an obsession.

1. Complete the summary of the poem Poison Tree by filling in the blank spaces with suitable words/phrases.

The speaker was angry with his friend. He talked about it and his anger_____.

In another situation, the speaker was angry with his foe. He kept it _____ and the anger_____ like _____. Inwardly he shed _____ of _____, but he maintained a _____ exterior. The poison tree grew rapidly and bore _____. The enemy saw it and stealthily _____. As a result, the next morning, the speaker found his enemy _____. He was glad to see his enemy in that situation. In the last stanza, the _____ of the speaker shows that_____.

2. What is the underlying message in the poem? How does it impact humanity at large?
3. How is the poem a metaphor?
4. 'And it grew both day and night,
Till it bore an apple bright'
a) Name the poet.
b) What does 'it' refer to?
c) What helped it to grow?

- d) What did it result in?
5. Can communication be a solution to religious intolerance?

VALUE POINTS

- The growing anger in the speaker is compared to the growth of a tree.
- Just as a tree grows on water and sunshine so does anger need sorrow, hatred, jealousy and tears.
- Allowed to be kept inside, the anger grows till it bears fruit just like a tree will bear fruit.
- The fruit is full of the poison of hatred, jealousy, envy and a brooding anger which has been allowed to grow and fester into malice.
- The end result is naturally then of taking revenge and rejoicing in one's victory over the enemy.

Month: August-September*Reading Comprehension*The Sportsman

The road was hilly, the wind was strong,
 The laddie gallantly struggled along
 With never a glance at the downward way
 Where his comrades shouted and laughed in play.
 Though he longed to be there and join the sport,
 In his brave little heart he crushed the thought,
 'If I went,' he said, 'I should certainly rue it,
 When you've promised a thing, you are bound to do it.'

The pitch was slippery, the bowling hard,
 A weary batsman stood on guard,
 He'd come to the field with aching head
 But the game depended on him, they said.
 The sun burnt hot on his tired back,
 And just for a moment he thought he'd slack,
 He was sorely tempted to lose a wicket:
 'twould be easy,' he thought, 'but that wouldn't be cricket!'

In life sometimes things won't go well,
 And Duty is a difficult word to spell,
 A high ideal as the worthiest prize
 Will shun the evil and follow the good
 And say to himself as a brave lad should.
 'It only needs grit, and I must not lack it;
 The world's a hard nut, but I mean to crack it!'

The Cloud

I bring showers for the thirsting flowers,
 From the seas and the streams;
 I bear light shade for the leaves when laid
 In their noonday dreams.
 From my wings are shaken the dews that waken
 The sweet buds every one,
 When rocked to rest on their mother's breast,
 As she dances about the sun.
 I wield the flail of the lashing hail,
 And whiten the green plains under,
 And then again I dissolve it in rain,
 And laugh as I pass in thunder.

I am the daughter of earth and water,
 And the nursling of the sky;
 I pass through the pores of the ocean and shores;
 I change, but I cannot die.
 For after the rain when with never a stain,
 The pavilion of heaven is bare,
 And the winds and sunbeams with their convex gleams,
 Build up the blue dome of air,
 I silently laugh at my own cenotaph,
 And out of the caverns of rain,
 Like a child from the womb, like a ghost from the tomb,
 I arise and unbuild it again.

Fishfalls

For timber worker James Lewis, the sudden shower of rain on 9 February 1859, at the saw mill Glamorgan, Wales, meant that he had to pack away his tools and take shelter until the weather cleared. As he ran through the puddles of rainwater to reach the cover of the tool shed, he felt himself being pelted by a stream of objects falling from the clouds. Then, as he pulled the brim of his hat tighter over his head for protection, he found himself standing in the middle of a downpour of live, wriggling fish.

The brim of his hat was filled with fish, there were fish littered over the roof of the tool shed, and still more fish gasping in the pools of water at the amazed man's feet. As the sky cleared, the astonished timber worker and his workmates began to gather the fish in some wooden baskets they had with them. Ten minutes later there was another rain squall, and another shower of live fish. It wasn't a widespread spray from the overcast sky, but one solid line of fish emerging from one section of the clouds.

There is no doubt that whirlwinds and tornadoes can scoop up light objects and small animals from the surface of the earth, scattering them over a wide area. However, in all the reported cases of fishfalls, fish have fallen from almost cloudless skies, unaccompanied by any other debris. No one knows what the mysterious force is that can suck up fish from oceans and lakes, carrying them high in the sky and directing them to fall to earth long after the storms have passed.

Now answer the following questions.

1. Was Lewis working at the time of the downpour? Justify your answer.

2. Tick the right answer-

- a) Lewis was astonished because
- i) They had to collect fish in wooden baskets
  - ii) there were fish falling from the clouds
  - iii) the brim of his hat was filled with fish

- b) The fish were scooped up by a

- i) tornado
- ii) debris
- iii) cloudless sky
- iv) none of the above

3. How many fish showers occurred?

---

4. What do the experts say?

---

5. What fact about fishfalls is not known to anyone?

---

6. Match the following:

	A	B
1	Wood	Wriggling
2	Collected Water	Littered
3	Worm like movement	Overcast
4	Scattered	Downpour
5	Clouded	Pelted
6	Waste	Puddle
7	Hit by objects	Timber

Section B (Writing)*Guided Report

- A guided newspaper report is a short writing skill to test the students' ability to incorporate the given information in the correct blanks so as to make meaningful and grammatically correct sentences.
- The gaps, in this case, need more than one word.
- The gaps should be filled based solely on the notes provided to you. Do not add any other extra information.
- Keep in mind the tense of the passage. Grammatically incorrect sentences even if factually correct will not be marked right.

Solved Example

Projections for Waste Management

Current waste generation in the capital city: about 75,000 metric tonnes per day—projected waste generation by 2021: 300,000 metric tonnes per day—suggestions—segregate domestic waste as recyclable, biodegradable and non-biodegradable—develop separate sites for industrial waste disposal. Adopt eco-friendly ways for its management.

April 12, 2006, New Delhi: MCD recently organized a conference on solid waste management. In the conference it was brought out that the municipal waste (a) generated in the city was about 75,000 metric tonnes per day. If the present rate of waste generation was not checked in time, then, (b) by 2021, the growth rate would escalate to 300,000 metric tonnes per day. Many experts on solid waste management expressed their views on the subject. Speaking on the occasion, the Health Minister, Mr. Ramadoss, said that for waste management the citizens must cooperate with the local bodies. The waste should, at first, be (c) segregated as domestic recyclable, biodegradable and non-biodegradable. There should be (d) separate sites for industrial waste. Many members suggested that for waste management (e) eco-friendly ways need to be adopted.

Section C (Grammar)

Conjunctions

Some words are satisfied spending an evening at home, alone, eating ice-cream right out of the box, watching re-runs on TV, or reading a good book. Others aren't happy unless they're out on the town, mixing it up with other words; they're joiners and they just can't help themselves. A conjunction is a joiner; a word that connects (conjoins) parts of a sentence.

Coordinating Conjunctions

The simple, little conjunctions are called coordinating conjunctions such as:

and, but, or, yet, for, nor, so

(It may help you remember these conjunctions by recalling that they all have fewer than four letters. Also, remember the acronym FANBOYS: For-And-Nor-But-Or-Yet-So.

When a coordinating conjunction connects two clauses, it is often (but not always) accompanied by a comma:

- He wants to work for Microsoft, but he has fallen short of their requirements.

When the two independent clauses connected by a coordinating conjunction are nicely balanced or brief, many writers will omit the comma:

- He writes fast but not neatly.

A Subordinating Conjunction (sometimes called a dependent word or subordinator) comes at the beginning of a clause and establishes the relationship between the dependent clause and the rest of the sentence. It also turns the clause into something that depends on the rest of the sentence for its meaning.

- He took to the stage as though he had been preparing for this moment all his life.
- Because he loved acting, he refused to give up his dream of being in the movies.
- Unless we act now, all is lost.

Notice that some of the subordinating conjunctions given below — after, before, since — are also prepositions, but as subordinators they are being used to introduce a clause and to subordinate the following clause to the independent element in the sentence.

After	Although	as
If	That	As
If only	Than
In order that	So that	as if now that	Since	as long as
Once	Rather than	as though whenever	even though	because
Where	till	before
whereas	unless	even if wherever	until

Correlative Conjunctions

Some conjunctions combine with other words to form what are called correlative conjunctions. They always travel in pairs, joining various sentence elements that should be treated as grammatically equal.

- She led the team not only in statistics but also by virtue of her enthusiasm.
- Polonius said, "Neither a borrower nor a lender be."
- Whether you win this race or lose it doesn't matter as long as you do your best.

Section D (Literature)*Coming Home To Delhi
Madhur Jaffrey

The author fondly remembers her childhood spent in Delhi in a large joint family. She recalls her train journey back from her grandfathers place , and recollects how they used to throw coins into the Jamuna river to bring them good luck at the behest of her mother. Delhi, she describes as a beautiful town built again and again, mostly on its previous ruins, culminating in a glorious period during the Moghuls who built canals, tanks, gardens to recreate their homeland and added many delicacies to its cuisine. Mornings of Delhi , with its minarets and domes in hazy glare and myriad aroma of dishes being cooked, to her has been the most memorable part. The family picnic, with almost 30 members , meticulously stuffed into two cars, with golden puris, meatballs and pickles, spread out on the lawns of Kutub minar reminds her of the happy days gone by. Happily, after so many years, on her return to Delhi, she still found the mornings the same, hazy with millions of stoves cooking food and students and office goers off to schools and office with their tiffin carriers , the way she used to.

- 1 How was Delhi a combination of many Delhis?
- 2 Which hour of the day did the city look most beautiful?
- 3 The author feels that some activities of old Delhi are still found in the present Delhi.
- 4 What kind of life style did the women lead in her grand father's house?

Where the Mind is Without Fear

Consisting of one sentence, Tagore's simple prayer for his country, prior to her gaining independence from Britain, has become one of the most quoted political prayers. The universality of this prayer allows it to transcend both time and space.

The first seven lines denote a condition portrayed by a metaphor of place, "Where the mind is without fear," "Where knowledge is free," etc., until we read the last line, we do not know the exact reference of this place, but we do realize that it is a place where many wonderful qualities exist: Fearlessness, Knowledge, Unity, Truth, Useful Work, Reason and Progress. After depicting all these useful qualities, the poet names that place as "That heaven of Freedom," and asks God to allow his country to "awaken" to the realization that she must achieve the ability to demonstrate these wonderful qualities.

1. Why does the poet, Rabindranath Tagore, pray for his country "to awake?"
2. What can stop or hamper us from attaining the freedom of heaven?
3. "Where tireless striving stretches its arms towards perfection;"
  - i) Identify and write a poetic device used in the above line.
  - ii) How will 'tireless striving' help in attaining the heaven of freedom?
4. "Where the clear stream of reason -----desert sand of dead habits'
  - a) Explain the above line.
5. What are the attributes of a country that the poet dreams of?
6. Are traditions always limiting or do you think that preservation and conservation can be liberating?

VALUE POINTS

- The poet asks God to help us become progressive in our thought.
- Where our minds are not narrowed by prejudices or meaningless traditions, but are able to think beyond selfish and personal gains for the larger good of humanity
- Such open mindedness and thinking for the betterment of people will lead to action that will impact society and humanity at large.

SECTION A
Reading skills-17 marks

A1. Read the following passage carefully and then answer the questions that follow. (10)

1. It was a pet dream of mine – becoming the chief guest at an inauguration ceremony. Whenever I watched ministers laying foundation stones or lesser mortals scissoring ribbons to step into newly-opened showrooms, I burned with jealousy. Oh what adulation! What importance! I longed to cut ribbons or lay the foundation stone of any project even though the project was not likely to be completed in this century, which is usually the case today. But I was not invited to the inauguration of even my village 'akhara'. When I had almost given up hopes, my dream suddenly came true, though not the way I had imagined.

2. A couple of months back my friendly neighbourhood halwai (who had exploited my weakness for sweetmeats to the hilt and so naturally adored me) informed me that he was going to open a South Indian restaurant near his sweetshop. Since I am not an avid admirer of vada and idli I took the information with a fair amount of indifference and never thought of it again except wondering at times how much of the fellow's profit was due to the steady flow of cool cash from my purse to his.

3. Then a week back when I had gone for my usual quota of peda and burfi, he declared, "My new shop is opening tomorrow. You must certainly come, at six in the evening." Nodding absent-mindedly I returned home and was soon munching pedas with a grudging admiration.

4. The next day while I was taking my usual evening walk, I heard someone come up behind me panting. It was fatso halwai hollering, "Babuji, Babuji," I was immediately suspicious – was there any shortfall in my payments? But the halwai, it seemed, had come to escort me to his new shop, which had completely slipped out of my mind.

5. I was ushered in with flourish. There were diners of all shape and sizes. The halwai and his assistant Dhiru hovered around, lavishing all their attention on me. Everybody's gaze was riveted on me; evidently I was the distinguished guest of the evening. A crisp special dosa was placed before me. The halwai asked if I wanted anything else. I had only a fiver in my pocket so I waved away the trayful of other scrumptious delicacies that Dhiru brought in.

6. When it was time to pay I said a few appropriate words of appreciation for the food and gave him the fiver. The halwai looked shocked. "Oh no, Babuji, don't embarrass me. You have honoured me by stepping into my shop and tasting the food. I am highly indebted to you." I was thrilled. At last here I was a guest of honour! But with it came a touch of regret – if only I had known that I wouldn't have to pay for all that .....ah!

Cherry Tree

Eight years have passed
 Since I placed my cherry tree in the ground
 'Must have a cherry tree of my own', I said-
 And watered it once and went to bed
 And forgot, but cherries have a way of growing
 Though no one's caring very much or knowing
 And suddenly that summer, near the end of May,
 I found a tree had come to stay.
 It was very small, a five months' child,
 Lost in tall grass running wild.
 Goats ate the leaves, grasscutter's scythe
 Split it apart, and a monsoon blight
 Shrivelled the slender stem--- Even so,
 Next spring I saw three new shoots grow,
 The young tree struggle, upward thrust
 Its arms in fresh fierce lust
 For light and air and sun.

2. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The analysis of handwriting has a long history—some say it goes back to the Roman times.

The principles, according to Conway, are straight forward. The baseline—whether the writing goes straight across the page or slants up and down—helps to determine the writer’s state of mind.

A very upward baseline shows a creative, ambitious and outgoing person. A slightly downward one can reveal dissatisfaction or unhappiness though it could simply be a sign of fatigue. “A sharp downward baseline usually indicates serious problems or illness, probably emotional,” says Conway, “while a straight one is an excellent sign of emotional stability. An irregular baseline can mean an excitable writer with poor self discipline.”

The way letters are formed and connected is important: a writer with angular letters, for example, is often persistent and decisive. Arched letters suggest the writer is reluctant to express emotions freely and may appear cold. Where the bottoms of letters are curved like a cup, the writer is likely to be open to the world and at ease. And writing with letters threaded-connected together as if by a length of cotton- can indicate speed or laziness. The more connected the letters, the more co-ordinated the patterns of thought.

Character size can also be significant. Larger letters tend to suggest vitality, enterprise and self-reliance, while smaller letters can reveal a lack of self-confidence, but are also found in fields of research where concentration and exactness are necessary.

The slant of a person’s writing indicates their emotional make-up. Where all the letters are vertical the writer is likely to be some one uncomfortable in groups. For right-handers, left word slant shows introversion while right ward slant reveals someone outgoing, friendly and ambitious. A constantly varying slant betrays an unpredictable personality.

The spacing between words points to the writer’s organizational abilities: wide spacing suggests individuality, extravagance, self-confidence and sociability.

Even the colour of ink a person chooses can be telling. Blue may indicate someone with no desire to be exceptional or pretentious, green likes to impress and red to shock. Brown is often used by people who work in high-security jobs, able to keep secrets, while black shows a demanding or forceful character who wants to make an impression.

1. When the writing goes straight or slants up or down, what does it tell about the writer?

2. Writing with a straight baseline is an indication of:

- a. self reliance
- b. sociability
- c. emotionally stable person
- d. pretention

3. What do connected letters in writing indicate? Explain in your own words.

4. People with small size of letters used in their handwriting indicate:

- a. vitality
- b. lack of self-confidence but with concentration
- c. exactness
- d. both b & c

5. “ Extravagance” means:

- a. extra-vigilance
- b. extra-special
- c. valour
- d. one who spends excessively

Section B (Writing)*Factual Description of a Person—Wanted Poster*VALUE POINTS

- A factual description of a person is a collection of related sentences dealing with the description of the physical appearance of the person.
- Such a writing task is sequential and directional, i.e., proceeding from one point to another in a fixed direction.
- Focus is on factual accuracy and needs to be concise.
- While writing a factual description students must show an eye for detail.
- The description moves from general to particular, i.e., outwardly appearance (height, health, build, clothes, hair) to specific and description of the face.
- Description of the face follows the sequence of the features on the face in their order of appearance: forehead, eyebrows, eyes, nose, lips, teeth, chin and so on.
- Characteristics of the personality—qualities/attitudes/way of walking, talking, etc.

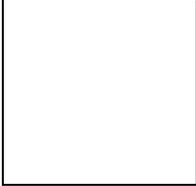

To be able to write an effective description you will need a list of adjectives at your command to specifically describe the different facial features. Given below in a box is a list of adjectives. Classify them under the correct column in the second box.

Angular	close-cropped	well-tailored	casual stocky
elegant	unshaven	ill-fitting	formal
lanky	balding
bearded	sloppy	medium	petite
hefty	slim	plaited
neat
open	friendly	sharp-featured	wavy

fair	thin	pale	swarthy
long	round	untidy	tidy
broken	oval	square

Face/Shape of Face	Complexion	Eyes	Hair	Nose	Lips	Teeth	Dress	Build

Wanted Poster*Solved Example

WANTED

Wanted in the kidnapping of a young girl, this man is tall and has a heavy build. Last seen wearing a white kurta over blue jeans. He has a round face, is unshaven and is balding with tufts of gray hair over the ears. Thick, bushy eyebrows under a broad, furrowed, forehead cover a protruding right eye. The left eye is covered with a black patch. The nose is hooked and long. Thin curled lips cover gapped, discoloured teeth. Suitable reward will be given for information leading to his capture. If sighted contact your nearest police station.

Now try to draw the portrait of the man described above in the empty box.

EXERCISES

1. You have just moved to a new school or to a new colony. Describe the first friend you make and attempt a portrait of that friend as well. Do not exceed 100 words.
2. Albert Royston (A Night to Forget) was shocked/ upset after his part was skipped. He ran away from the auditorium and has not been seen since. Help find him by providing an accurate description of about 100 words. Make his portrait too.
3. Jessica, Shylock's daughter has run away with a lot of money. Help Shylock find her. Make a poster giving her factual description in about 100 words. Draw her portrait too.

Section C (Grammar)*Main and Subordinate Clauses*Phrases and Clauses

A phrase is a group of words that makes some sense but not complete sense.

Phrases do not contain a subject-verb combination.

For Example: My grandfather who worked in the railways, has traveled all over the country.

A group of words in a sentence that contains a subject-verb combination and has a finite verb is called a clause.

For Example: The wind is blowing and the rain is falling.

Some clauses are complete sentences on their own.

EXERCISES*1. Identify the underlined group of words as phrases or clauses by writing

P or C:

1. He is writing a book on the life of Mahatma Gandhi.
2. He is writing a book about what Gandhiji achieved in South Africa.
3. The class decided to give Jyoti ma'am a surprise.
4. Jyoti ma'am walked into the classroom and greeted the students.
5. The construction will be completed before the rains begin.
6. Leave your bags with the guard at the entrance.
7. Please let me know if you need the car.

2. Underline each clause .

- a) Its one o'clock and we should be on our way by now.
- b) I don't like him but I'll give him my support.
- c) He put his hand on her arm but said nothing.

- d) You go round to the back of the house and take a look and I'll try the front door again.
- e) Its Saturday so I needn't get up so early.
- f) I've tried and I've tried but I've never managed it.
- g) The government promised reforms but has done nothing.

Some sentences have just one clause. In fact, the whole sentence is one single clause. This single clause is called the main clause. Such a sentence is called a simple sentence.

Examples:

- I am not feeling well today.
- The city of Mumbai was rocked by the terrorist attacks.

REMEMBER:

A simple sentence has a single verb.

Some sentences are made up of two or more clauses which are of equal importance. They are like two or more sentences joined together.

Each clause is independent of the other and could have been a separate sentence. These clauses are called coordinate clauses. Such a sentence is called a compound sentence. The clauses are connected by coordinating conjunctions such as and, or, but, yet, so.

Examples:

- The test was long but she managed to finish it.
- Roma is a talented singer and dancer. (There is no need to repeat the subject.)
- The bus was caught in a jam, so she reached the school late.

Another way of joining coordinate clauses is to use a semi colon without any conjunction.

For Example: Reema was singing a bhajan; I sat down to listen.

A subordinate clause is one that cannot stand on its own as a separate sentence. Subordinating conjunctions, such as, because, if, while, though, relative pronouns (who, which, that) or relative adverbs (who, when, where) join the subordinate clause to the main clause.

A Complex sentence has one main clause and two or more subordinate clauses.

3. Identify each clause as main / subordinate clause.

- a) The boy had a bath and ran to attend his Chess class.
- b) The Chess class will not take place if Mr. Smith doesn't arrive by 5pm.
- c) Sachin Tendulkar hit a double century in the match last week.
- d) Organic pulses are good because they are not only healthy but take lesser time to cook.
- e) The use of carbon-based fuels increases greenhouse gases in the atmosphere and causes global warming.
- f) I didn't enjoy reading the book; I didn't understand the story very well.
- g) Mahesh Bhupati and Leander Paes together form an effective Tennis duo.
- h) As we ascend to higher altitudes, air pressure and oxygen concentration decreases.
- i) The shrine at Tirupati is the most powerful in India.
- j) If you mix salt in water, the freezing point reduces.
- k) The instructor might seem very strict at first, but you'll learn the dance quite easily, because of his style of teaching.

Section A (Reading)

1. Read the following poem and answer the questions that follow.

THESE DREAMS

These dreams
Obstinate offspring of my wayward mind
Keep running out of my home
All too often.

Somewhat humiliated
Somewhat hurt
Somewhat angry
At times they even rush out barefoot.

It is difficult to pacify these stubborn kids or humour them
For theirs is a search for eternal spring
They wish to seek out the stars and talk to them
I am a tired traveler
And have not the will
To chase them anymore.

I have come to terms
With my wilderness but I fear for Those naïve ones
Come evening and they may seek solace
If they come to you even as you sleep
Do not push them away, tenderly hold them
In your lap like their fond mother

Answer the following questions on your own or by selecting the most appropriate option from the ones given below:

1. The poet feels that he cannot control his dreams by saying that they:

- are somewhat angry
- rush out barefoot
- are obstinate offsprings
- keep running out of his home

2. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow:

It's Shoe Time Folks!

My friend, Streak, who stays in the US, recently came to India. After spending a month visiting different parts of our country, he came to see me. Late one evening, when my family huddled around him to know his views on India, he remarked, "Hey, there's something very interesting about your country. You have cobblers everywhere whether it is a posh market in a metro or a small town, and all of them find space under the shade of some tree or by the wayside and are busy mending shoes."

Now, expecting him to talk about the Taj Mahal, Khajuraho, Konark or the mountains of sand in Jaisalmer, for a minute I was in a tizzy. What is so unusual about finding cobblers all over the place? People with particular skills like cobblers, laundrymen, hairdressers, electricians, plumbers, motor mechanics and the like are surely indispensable in all habitats, especially in towns and cities, I thought to myself. After a pause I said, "Streak, it's like this: cobblers are everywhere because the shoes and chappals we wear can give us trouble any time. And if they are not repaired immediately, one is hamstrung."

He retorted, "But, why don't your manufacturers prepare good quality shoes to spare you such situations? The pair of shoes I am wearing has never needed repairs even though it's two years since I bought it. And the interesting part is that my shoes carry the "Made in India" tag even though they were purchased in New Jersey!"

I was unprepared for this type of query. Just then, my neighbour dropped in to say hello and on my request joined us for a cup of tea. He has a unit for manufacturing and exporting shoes and after the usual enquiries and introductions, I posed Streak's question to him. Ready-witted and he is, he snapped back; "Well, there is nothing unusual about it. We produce two types of products, one for the export market and the other for domestic consumers. The one your friend is wearing is of export quality. That means, superior to what we offer in the domestic market!"

My friend from the US was aghast. "You mean to say that manufacturers have two sets of production policies," he remarked. "Why, to me that amounts to being unfair to your countrymen." It was now becoming pretty discomfiting for me to debate this controversy-generating issue any further. I wanted to change the topic but it looked as if my neighbour had taken Streak's remark as a personal affront to the entire shoe-making fraternity in India.

"Mr. Streak," he exclaimed, "as manufacturers, we have to keep in mind the socio-economic conditions of our country. Here we have millions of cobblers who earn their livelihoods by mending the shoes we make. How can we be insensitive to this reality? And remember, the purchasing power of our countrymen is not the same as you have in the US. If we start offering them the shoes we export to you, then 80% of the population of my country will remain without shoes!"

Since Streak was by now looking convinced, I was happy besides being a trifle relieved.

However, just as my neighbour got up to say goodbye, Streak came up with his parting shot.

"Today I understand why Indians have to leave their shores to be world-class citizens and why they can't be world-class staying in India."

I really don't know if that was a barb or a compliment.

1. Read the following poem and answer the questions that follow.

On Killing a Tree

It takes much time to kill a tree
 Not a simple jab of the knife
 Will do it. It has grown
 Slowly consuming the earth,
 Rising out of it, feeding
 Upon its crust, absorbing
 Years of sunlight, air, water,
 And out of its leprous hide
 Sprouting leaves.

So hack and chop
 But this alone won't do it.
 Not so much pain will do it.
 The bleeding bark will heal
 And from close to the ground
 Will rise curled green twigs,
 Miniature boughs
 Which if unchecked will expand again
 To former size.

No,
 The root is to be pulled out,
 Out of the anchoring earth;
 It is to be roped, tied,
 And pulled out—snapped out
 Or pulled out entirely
 Out from the earth- cave
 And strength of the tree exposed,
 The source, white and wet,
 The most sensitive, hidden
 For years inside the earth.

Then the matter
 Of scorching and choking
 In sun and air,
 Browning, hardening
 Twisting, withering,
 And then it is done.

2. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow:

Lassie came to the water's edge. She turned her head to the west again. But there, not far below her was a town. From a bridge there were boys fishing. She gazed steadily at them.

Then she looked at the white, tumbling water. The roar of it drummed unpleasantly in her ears. Yet she hesitated only a moment. Then, boldly jumping, she launched her body far out into the water.

The water bore Lassie's body downstream as she landed. The power of the river tumbled her about, but she came to the surface and she began striking out for the far shore. Her head was outstretched; her four feet drove steadily, pumping her along.

Again and again the current tumbled her with crushing force, and often she almost drowned. But each time the marvelous direction sense of a dog never deserted her, and as she came up she was still fighting in the right direction. Always Lassie struck out towards the southern bank.

But the stream had now carried her down towards the village. The boys on the bridge saw the spectacle of a dog being whirled by the current. They shouted and screamed. With the cruelty of the young that sometimes gets free rein, picked stones from the roadbed and flung them at her. As her body was whirled under the bridge, they ran across to the downstream side and continued their senseless pelting.

Lassie still fought on. Now she was at last nearing the other bank. A cascade was below her. Her driving feet raced, but they were not powerful enough. The current caught her, and she felt herself being whirled through space. Her body was driven cruelly against a rock and a stab of pain ran like fire along her side. The current drew her down, and she disappeared.

The boys on the bridge, looking far downstream, gave a shout, almost of insane triumph. Then they were still. They stood gazing at the tumbling water. At last, after it seemed that too much time had passed, they shouted again. There in a backwater, Lassie's head broke the surface again, and she was still driving with her legs. Now the water was still, and she was able to master it. Fighting, swimming, driving with all her force, she made the landing. Her feet touched ground. The water soaked into her coat seemed to be too much of a burden, for she staggered at that moment, and her weary muscles seemed unable to hold her.

She started to drag herself clear. But now, for the first time, she became aware of the danger. The troop of boys was dashing down the riverbank, sounding a wild chorus. Lassie called on her last strength. She pulled herself up to the bank. She did not even wait to shake the water from her coat. She did not halt for the old pain in her forefoot or for the new one that seared like fire along her side. Her mind held only one thing.

At last she was across. She was at last free – free to go south. The barrier was passed. She broke into a clumsy lope. The noise of the lads behind her faded.

- This is an expression of personal feelings, inner most thoughts and emotions.
- A diary entry is always in the past tense.
- The word 'today' should feature in the beginning of the entry.
- Start the diary entry with day, date.

Solved Example*Friday, July 20, 1995

It had not stopped raining since 6 in the morning. I had been sitting near the window in my room, watching the Gulmohar tree outside dripping with rain. Why did God have to be so unkind to me? It was my birthday today and I had made so many plans. Mom had promised a grand lunch and I was to bring all my friends home after school. But there had been no school, as it was declared a holiday due to waterlogged roads. Mom, though I must admit, kept her promise and had cooked a whole lot of goodies. The aroma of her wonderful cooking had enveloped the whole house, though I seem to have lost my appetite. And my friends? Are they my friends? Not a single one had turned up. Mom said they had called to say that they could not make it. I feel miserable! We were to have games and dancing and there were those lovely return gifts all wrapped up and ready...Oh! This is the worst birthday anyone could wish for.

Guess what? They all arrived at 7p.m.! We did have the party after all! Mom wanted it to be a surprise, so I wasn't told. What a wonderful time we had! We danced and sang and brought the roof down. We made so much noise with our dancing and laughter that at one point one of our neighbours actually came to complain! And the food—it was heavenly! My friends loved every minute of the party and I loved every minute of their exciting and fun-filled company. They were all reluctant to go home just as much as I was to see my party come to an end. But I am looking forward to opening my presents.

Thank you God; thank you, Mom. Oh, I am so happy! This has to be the best birthday party anyone could wish for.

Adverb Clauses

An adverb clause is a subordinate clause that functions as an adverb in the main clause. An adverbial clause tells us why, when, where, how, who and under what conditions the main event of the sentence took place.

An adverbial clause may begin with a subordinating conjunction – a word like when, because, if and although.

Examples:

- When the murderer entered the room, I drew in my breath sharply.
- Leave the books wherever you like.
- I'll come when I'm ready.

Adverbial clauses can be placed at the beginning, middle or end of a sentence.

EXERCISE*1. Underline the adverb clauses in the following sentences:

1. While you were out, someone called.
2. Before he came, he called.
3. As soon as you are finished, call me.
4. I ordered two pizzas as we were all hungry.
5. I failed because I didn't study.
6. I fixed it so that anybody could use it.
7. This card is accepted wherever you go.
8. She talked as if she were a princess.
9. He swam as if he were a fish in the sea.
10. While I was fishing last year, I caught a fish.
11. The family left irritated that the bears had stolen their food.
12. She stared at the sky looking for signs of life among the stars.

Types of Adverbial Clauses:

I. Adverbial Clause of Time: a subordinate clause that says when something happens.

They are introduced by conjunctions such as after, as, as soon as, before, once, since, till, until, when, whenever, while.

For Example: I'm not leaving till I know the truth.

II. Adverbial Clause of Place: it says where something happens, and is introduced by conjunctions where and wherever.

For Example: Put it wherever you like.

III. Adverbial Clause of Manner: it says how something happens and is introduced by conjunctions as, as if, as though, how, however and like.

For Example: Glue the pieces together as I showed you.
I'll do it however I like.

IV. Adverbial Clause of Reason: it tells why something happens or why it should happen. It is introduced by conjunctions such as: as, because, in case, seeing, seeing as, seeing that and since.

For Example: As it was raining, we decided not to go.
Take an umbrella in case it rains.
Seeing that it's raining, you'll have to play indoors.

V. Adverbial Clause of Purpose: it tells you why something is happening, but states the aim or purpose of it rather than the reason for it or the cause of it. It is introduced by conjunctions such as: so, so that, in order that.

For Example: Take an umbrella so that you don't get wet.
My neighbour turned down the volume so that I could concentrate on what I was doing.

VI. Adverbial Clause of Result: tells you what results for something happening. It is introduced by conjunctions such as: so / such plus that.

For Example: It rained so much that the garden was flooded.

VII. Adverbial Clause of Concession: it is introduced by conjunctions such as although, even if, even though, however, no matter what/who/where etc. though, whatever, wherever, while, whoever, whereas and whether...or.

For Example: Even though the sun was shining, the weather was very cold.
I'm going whether you're coming with me or not.

VIII. Adverbial Clause of Condition: it states the conditions or circumstances that are, or would be necessary for what is talked about in the main clause to happen. Conjunctions that introduce them are: if, as long as, on condition that, provided, provided that, providing, so long as, unless.

They are also sometimes called the if- clauses.

For Example: I'll go if she invites me.
I won't come unless she invites me.
So long as you don't forget your lines, you'll be fine.

Section D (Literature)*DARJEELING

Rasipuram Krishna Swami Iyer Laxman (24 October 1921- 26 January 2015) was a cartoonist par excellence. R.K. Laxman is also one of the country's most entertaining writers, illustrator and humorist. He was best known for his creation The Common Man and for his daily cartoon strip, 'You Said It' in The Times of India.

Darjeeling is a travelogue brought to life by Laxman's vivid description and his inimitable way of looking at the world around him.

Unlike a usual travelogue that gives a clear insight into the destination, Laxman allows the reader to experience it all with him by providing information as it is. The author plans his trip by train all the way from Bombay to Darjeeling with great enthusiasm and encouragement by all and sundry. It is only when he is on board does he realize that this in fact was not going to be possible after all. The landslides have cut off the railway connection and he ends up having to take a taxi to his destination.

Even the taxi ride only gives him glimpses of his journey because of the dense mist. However it is not all gloomy as his keen sense of observation helps him absorb and appreciate each little detail. It is also not without pleasant surprises as he drives past Tenzing Norgay's house and actually sees him gardening there.

He beautifully captures the changing landscape as well as the weather pattern, which is now turned into a heavy rain. While the others rue at this Laxman merely observes it and notes how beautiful the morning returns with a captivating clear view of the Kanchenjunga. He ventures into the popular spots for all tourists in hill stations in India, the Mall and vividly describes the bustle and life there.

He takes a quick jaunt to Sikkim, where the weather is pleasant, and enjoys all that the place has to offer. His narrative of the sojourn to Sikkim and the Tiger Hills leaves the reader wanting more.

The longer he stays, the more familiar he becomes with the place and the people, who are warm and congenial. The extract makes a very interesting read and the author literally takes the reader on a trip to Darjeeling with him making it an unforgettable experience.

VOCABULARY:

All and sundry: everyone; each and everyone

Captivating: charming

Ventures: travels, journeys, proceeds (usually a risky or daring undertaking)

Rue: bitterly regret; to feel sorrow for

Congenial: pleasant; agreeable; hospitable; compatible

Sojourn: stay; visit ; a temporary stay

QUESTIONS:

1. What was the vital piece of information withheld from the author?
2. Describe the author's drive to Darjeeling. What were some of the sights that he glimpsed?
3. What was the ultimate destination in Darjeeling? Describe it in detail.
4. Why does the author say that they were lucky?

Section A (Reading)

1. Read the poem carefully and answer the questions that follow:

THE ENCHANTED SHIRT

The king was sick. His cheek was red,
And his eye was clear and bright,
He ate and drunk with kingly zest,
And peacefully snored at night.

But he said he was sick, and a king should know;
And doctors came by the score;
They did not cure him. He cut off their heads,
And sent to the schools for more.

At last two famous doctors came,
Together they looked at the royal tongue,
As the king on his couch reclined;
In succession they thumped his august chest,
But no trace of disease could find.

The king was as sound as a nut,
But they feared his royal rage;
So the old sage pensively rubbed his sagacious nose,
And thus his prescription ran;
The king will be well if he sleeps one night
In the shirt of a happy man.

Wide o'er the realm the courtiers rode,
And fast their horses ran;
And many they saw, and to many they spoke,
But they found no happy man.

They found poor men who would fain be rich,
And rich men who thought they were poor;
They saw two men by the roadside sit
And both bemoaned their lot.
For one had buried his wife, he said,
And the other one had not.

At last they came to a village gate;
A beggar lay whistling there;
He whistled, and sang, and laughed, and rolled

On the grass, in the soft June air.

The weary courtiers paused and looked
At the scamp so blithe and gay;

And one of them said, "Heaven save you, friend!
You seem to be happy today."

"O yes, fair sirs," the rascal laughed,
And his voice ran free and glad;
"An idle man has so much to do
That he never has time to be sad."

"That is our man," the courtier said,
"our luck has led us aright;
I will give you a hundred ducats, friend,
For the loan of your shirt tonight."

The merry blackguard lay back on the grass,
And laughed till his face was black;
"I would do it, God Wot," and he roared with fun;
"but I haven't a shirt on my back."

Each day to the king the reports came in
Of his unsuccessful spies
And the sad panorama of human woes
Passed daily under his eyes.

And he grew ashamed of his useless life,
And his maladies hatched in gloom;
He opened his window and let the air
Of the free heaven into his room.

And out he went in the world and toiled
In his own appointed way;
And the people blessed him,-the land was glad,
And the king was well and gay.

And what a change! Have you noticed something about wedding dinners – buffet – of course – these days? They are a strangely quiet affair. The orderly queue of the guests leading up to the tables where the food has been neatly laid out, the silent efficient service by the catering staff, the murmur of ‘Yes, please’ or ‘no, thank you’ in the way of response, and the ever – so – soft conversation thereafter to the equally soft accompaniment of crockery coming into delicate contact with cutlery. A clinical setting almost, the spotless white gloves worn by the catering staff contributing their special touch. For scalpel read serving spoon.

Compare this with the bedlam at wedding –dinner time at an earlier point in history. The maddening yet so delightful row that went on as one lot of diners finished eating and the next lot moved in. The full throated cries of “Now bring the daal,” “What happened to the fried brinjal?” and “serve the mutton curry and pulao the second time round”, punctuated with the personal entreaties by the hosts. These made a meal with a difference.

For the people who served you were not professional jaded and tired of routine. Those who supervised your meal in those dear old days were almost always relatives and family friends. They knew your likes and dislikes, perhaps even a fair bit about your health problems. “OK, forget the mutton, but do have another piece of fish.” You can’t possibly expect caterer’s men to know that red meat does you no good.

Email Writing

Word Limit: 120 words

E mail consists of two major sections:

Header consisting of subject, sender, receiver, date and time

Body contains the message. It can be formal/informal letter depending on the purpose.

Subject

- It should be brief
- It should give a clue to the content of the message
- It need not be a complete sentence.

Salutation:

- Dear Sir/ first name of the person

Opening sentence

- Begin with a pleasantry or greeting
- When replying to a message: “Thank you for your message/ I received your message”

Clarity and tone

- When you expect a reply: “Please let me know”
- When you want help: “Please” or “Kindly”

Paragraphs

- Each main idea should be in a separate paragraph, making it easy for the reader to understand the message.
- Use complete sentences. (no SMS language)

Complimentary Close

- Regards/ Love
- Name

The style of an email will depend both on the situation and familiarity of the writer with the reader. All e-mails should be polite, but the degree of politeness will vary depending on who the writer is and what is the purpose of the mail. E-mails are shorter and less formal than letters.

EXERCISES

1. In today's age of 'online friendships' through popular social networking sites like Facebook, Twitter, Orkut, etc., people 'meet' and 'make' friends online. This could have both advantages and disadvantages. Write an e-mail to an online newspaper, 'Musings', expressing your views. You are Savita/Survesh. Use the following inputs together with ideas of your own.
  - ❖ Many strangers prowling on the net with fake identities.
  - ❖ Trap and fool unsuspecting children and adults.
  - ❖ Several cases of online fraud and crime.
  - ❖ Young, immature minds are easily led astray.
2. Rashmi was scheduled to visit the scenic hill station of Dalhousie and spend a week with her friend there during her summer holidays. But she's come down with a bout of 5Flu and has, therefore, had to cancel her plans for travel. Disappointed at this turn of events, she writes an e-mail to her friend, Sujata, telling her of her change in plans. Help her write this e-mail.
3. You are Radha/Rajesh. A lot of your English work is pending. Write out an e-mail to your teacher explaining why you have not completed all your work.

Section C (Grammar)*Reported Speech

While converting direct speech into reported speech and vice versa the following changes occur:

1. Changes in Reporting Verb

- All the present tense verbs are converted to past tense.
- The first and second person pronouns are converted to third person.
- Pointer words like – this, now, here, these, today, yesterday tomorrow are changed into that, then, there, those that day, the day before and the next day.
- Inverted commas are removed.

REMEMBER

- Ought and Should normally don't change.
- The tense does not change while reporting facts.

Direct and Indirect Speech

When using indirect or reported speech, the form changes. Usually indirect speech is introduced by the verb said, as in I said, Bill said, or they said. Using the verb say in this tense, indicates that something was said in the past. In these cases, the main verb in the reported sentence is put in the past. If the main verb is already in a past tense, then the tense changes to another past tense; it can almost be seen as moving even further into the past.

Verb tense changes also characterize other situations using indirect speech. Note the changes shown in the chart and see the table below for examples. With indirect speech, the use of that is optional.

Direct Speech	<input type="checkbox"/>	Indirect Speech
simple present He said, "I go to school every day."	<input type="checkbox"/>	simple past He said (that) he went to school every day.
simple past He said, "I went to school every day."	<input type="checkbox"/>	past perfect He said (that) he had gone to school every day.
present perfect He said, "I have gone to school every day."	<input type="checkbox"/>	past perfect He said (that) he had gone to school every day.
present progressive He said, "I am going to school every day."	<input type="checkbox"/>	past progressive He said (that) he was going to school every day.
past progressive He said, "I was going to school every day."	<input type="checkbox"/>	perfect progressive He said (that) he had been going to school every day,
future (will) He said, "I will go to school every day."	<input type="checkbox"/>	would + verb name He said (that) he would go to school every day.
future (going to) He said, "I am going to go to school every day."	<input type="checkbox"/>	present progressive He said (that) he is going to go to school every day.
	<input type="checkbox"/>	past progressive He said (that) he was going to go to school every day.

auxiliary + verb name He said, “ Do you go to school every day?” He said, “ Where do you go to school?”	<input type="checkbox"/>	simple past He asked me if I went to school every day.* He asked me where I went to school.
Imperative He said, “ Go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	Infinitive He said to go to school every day.

NOTE- When a Yes/No question is asked in direct speech, then a construction with if or whether is used. If a WH question is being asked, then use the WH to introduce the clause. Also note that with indirect speech, these are examples of embedded questions.

The situation changes if instead of the common said another part of the verb to say is used. In that case the verb tenses usually remain the same. Some examples of this situation are given below.

Direct Speech	<input type="checkbox"/>	Indirect Speech
simple present + simple present He says , “ I go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	simple present + simple present He says (that) he goes to school every day.
present perfect + simple present He has said , “ I go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	present perfect + simple present He has said (that) he goes to school every day.
past progressive + simple past He was saying , “ I went to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	past progressive + simple past He was saying (that) he went to school every day.
	<input type="checkbox"/>	past progressive + past perfect He was saying (that) he had gone to school every day.
future + simple present He will say , “ I go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	future + simple present He will say (that) he goes to school every day.

Another situation is the one in which modal constructions are used. If the verb said is used, then the form of the modal, or another modal that has a past meaning is used.

Direct Speech	<input type="checkbox"/>	Indirect Speech
Can He said, “ I can go to school	<input type="checkbox"/>	Could He said (that) he could go to school every day.”		every day.

May He said, “I may go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	Might He said (that) he might go to school every day.
Might He said, “I might go to school every day.”
Must He said, “I must go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	had to He said (that) he had to go to school every day.
have to He said, “I have to go to school every day.”
Should He said, “I should go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	Should He said (that) he should go to school every day.
ought to He said, “I ought to go to school every day.”	<input type="checkbox"/>	ought to He said (that) he ought to go to school every day.

While not all of the possibilities have been listed here, there are enough to provide examples of the main rules governing the use of indirect or reported speech.

Some other verbs that can be used to introduce direct speech are: ask, report, tell, announce, suggest, and inquire.

Section D (Literature)

If

If you can keep your head when all about you
 Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
 If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
 But make allowance for their doubting too;
 If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
 Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
 Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
 And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise:

If you can dream – and not make dreams your master;
 If you can think – and not make thoughts your aim;
 If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
 And treat those two impostors just the same;
 If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
 Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
 Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
 And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools:

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
 And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
 And lose, and start again at your beginnings

And never breathe a word about your loss;
 If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
 To serve your turn long after they are gone,
 And so hold on when there is nothing in you
 Except the Will which says to them: "Hold on!"

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
 Or walk with Kings – nor lose the common touch,
 If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
 If all men count with you, but none too much;
 If you can fill the unforgiving minute
 With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
 Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
 And – which is more – you'll be a Man, my son!
Rudyard Kipling

Perhaps the most celebrated poem of Rudyard Kipling, If, composed at the turn of the 20th century is an inspiring poem that strongly highlights the virtues of 'grown-up' living: the way a young child evolves into a person of responsibility.

The opening lines express the imperative need of self-confidence, of courage to combat disapproval, the need to ignore doubt and make allowances for it. The poem is instructional in attitude, motivational in tone as the poet goes on advising the virtues of patience, honesty, fortitude and righteousness.

The conditional 'if', which is the title of the poem, refers to all the blocks in the way to full maturity, all the doubts and fears, all adversities that are to be solemnly and bravely overcome as a necessary pre-condition to true and perfect adulthood.

1. Who are knaves and fools?
2. Why does the poet refer to triumph and disasters as imposters?
3. How will the child finally evolve into a responsible adult?
4. 'If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
 Or walk with Kings – nor lose the common touch'
  - i) Who does 'you' refer to?
  - ii) What is the poet trying to convey in the first line?
  - iii) Who are the kings that the poet is referring to?
  - iv) What does common touch refer to?

5. Why is the 'minute unforgiving'?

Value Points

- Value of time- once gone does not come back.
- Make good use of time – do meaningful acts.
- Will never get another opportunity.

Gogol's First Day

Neelanjana Sudeshna "Jhumpa" Lahiri, born on July 11, 1967, is an Indian Bengali American Author. She is known by her nickname or in Bengali, her "Daak naam", Jhumpa. She is the recipient of the O'Henry award and the prestigious Pulitzer Prize. The Namesake is her first novel. Gogol's First Day is an extract from, 'The Namesake'.

The Ganguly family in "Gogol's First Day" are traditional Bengalis from Calcutta who happened to settle down in USA and make it their adopted home. Poised uneasily atop the complex and confounding fault lines common to immigrant experience, they go through familiar struggles between new and old, assimilation and cultural preservation, striving toward the future, while longing for the past.

In this extract one such struggle is deftly portrayed when the Bengali couple go to admit their first child into an American School. The boy who was named as Gogol after his father's favourite Russian novel was told that he would be admitted to the school by his good name Nikhil.

There is a lot of emotional history behind the choice of this name. The grandmother was to have named the child but is in India and the young couple lives in eternal wait for a letter that never arrives. Later, she falls ill and dies before a name is suggested. The child is born in America and the hospital urges that a name be given to the baby immediately on his birth to avoid complications later. Jhumpa Lahiri writes about the experience of this traditional Indian family that is staunch in its belief and is trapped by the formalities abroad. Gogol's father Ashoke, had been in a near fatal train accident as a young man. Fortuitously, he was saved by the fluttering of the leaves of the book that he had been reading, which had caused the rescue team to notice and save him. The book was one written by Nikolai Gogol. In gratitude for his new life, he immediately names the newborn Gogol. Gogol's parents hope that this will remain as a pet name and a proper 'good name' will be given to him formally, as is the practice with Bengali families.

Following Bengali custom the child is to have two names, a pet name and a good name. As the boy enters school, the parents attempt to convert his unusual name Gogol to more typical one as Nikhil. The boy however stolidly rejects the transition refusing to become as he thinks, "someone he doesn't know." . He refuses to answer to his new name and as a consequence is mistaken for not being able to understand English.

Fortunately the Principal values the child's preference and admits him as Gogol. As his education begins Gogol reaffirming his distinctive identity proudly signs all his creative work as Gogol G. The cultural differences and the confusion that ensue makes this chapter endearing. Each party to the case is earnest in its appeal. The father for wishing to maintain Nikhil as his son's first name, and Gogol, for wanting to maintain his identity with the name he knows. Mrs. Lapidus is perplexed by the wishes of the parents and the discomfort of the little boy. Eventually, she prioritizes the individuality of the child and his preference, much to the dismay and initial stupefaction of the parents. They ultimately resign to the norms of American society and accept their new life.

**** The Queen's Rival

Sarojini Naidu

Queen Gulnar sat on her ivory bed.
 Around her countless treasures were spread;
 Her chamber walls were richly inlaid
 With agate porphyry, onyx and jade;
 The tissues that veiled her delicate breast
 Glowed with the hues of a lapwing's crest;
 But still she gazed in her mirror and sighed
 'O King, my heart is unsatisfied;
 King Feroz bent from his ebony seat:
 'Is thy least desire unfulfilled, O Sweet?'
 'Let thy mouth speak and my life be spent
 To clear the sky of thy discontent.'
 'I tire of my beauty, I tire of this Empty splendor and shadow less bliss;
 'With none to envy and none gainsay,
 No savour of salt hath my dream or say,'
 Queen Gulnaar sighed like a murmuring rose;
 'Give me a rival, O King Feroz.'

This poem is based on a popular Persian legend about King Feroz and Queen Gulnaar. Accordingly the atmosphere and the background of the poem gives details of the royal splendor, wealth, riches, beauty and the whims and fancy of the queens and the all powerful kings.

The 'Queen's Rival' is a narrative poem written in the ballad style. The Queen considered her royal comforts and joys unsubstantial. She complained that she was tired of admiring her own beauty and of her dull monotonous life as there was no rival or competitor to envy her beauty and add spice to her life. The King tried to bring her a rival but the Queen did not consider them worthy of being her rival in beauty. This poem hints at the subconscious fear in the hearts of women, where they feel challenged by the beauty of their daughter as it reminds them of their own fading charm.

1. Who was Queen Gulnaar?
2. Describe the beauty of her chamber.
3. Why was Queen Gulnaar tired of her beauty?
4. Explain 'empty splendour' and 'shadowless bliss'.
5. How did the seven queens around Queen Gulnaar look like?

6. What all did the spring winds do?

7. State and explain the similes and metaphors used in this poem.

Section A: (Reading)

1. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

We often have parents cribbing about how difficult it is to bring up children these days. Too many parties, excessive extravagance, too much pocket money, less attention towards studies.... In fact an unending list of woes. But why is this the case these days?

Have parents ever given it a thought? Putting a child in a good school or in a good college, buying them a motorcycle or a car, giving them lots of pocket money and letting them do just what they feel like will never be the end to this problem. There is more to it. The basic need of a growing child is the love, attention, companionship which should be first given at home. It is not true that once the child grows up, he or she should not be taken care of. The right amount of independence should be given, their individuality should be respected and they should be treated at par with adults.

Problems with children have started increasing now-a-days. Years ago these problems were not as complex as they are today. These days, we have more nuclear families than joint families. There are too many reasons for it. The younger generation complain of losing their independence while the older generation crib about the generation gap. There are too many expenses to be met and different life-styles are led by each one. But what about the generations before us? Our grandparents also lived in joint families, but they had nothing to crib about. There was perfect harmony between the generations. May be people were not as independent as they are today.

There is much more a child wants from a parent other than the material pleasures. Affection and understanding are the two basic things that are needed to sort out these problems.

The Miller of the Dee

There dwelt a miller, hale and bold,
Beside the river Dee;
He worked and sang from morn till night—
No lark more blithe than he;
And this the burden of his song
Forever used to be:
“I envy nobody—no, not I—
And nobody envies me!”

“Thou’rt wrong my friend,” said good king Hal,
“As wrong as wrong can be;
For could my heart be light as thine,
I’d gladly change with thee.
And tell me now, what makes thee sing,
With voice so loud and free,
While I am sad, though I am king,
Besides the river Dee?”

The miller smiled and doffed his cap,
“I earn my bread,” quoth he;
“love my wife, I love my friend,
I love my children three;
I owe no penny I cannot pay,
I thank the river Dee,
That turns the mill that grinds the corn
That feeds my babes and me.”

“Good friend”, said Hal, and sighed the while,
“Farewell, and happy be;
But say no more, if thoud’st be true,
That no one envies thee;
Thy mealy cap is worth my crown,
Thy mill my kingdom’s fee;
Such men as thou are England’s boast,
O Miller of the Dee.

Rules for Subject Verb Agreement*The verb always agrees with the subject in number or person

- Lisa loves eating mangoes
- They love playing chess

Here are some rules to remember:

- When the subject of a sentence is singular, the verb must also be singular.
When the subject is plural, the verb must be plural.

For Example : Henry likes Deepak. (singular)
Henry and Deepak like Mary. (Plural)

- When the subject is of the phrase one of, followed by a plural noun, the verb is singular and agrees with one, which is singular.

For Example: One of the students in our class was praised by the teacher.
Priya is one of my best friends.

- When a sentence has two singular subjects joined by the conjunction and the verb must be plural.

For Example: Bishakha and Suman go to the same school.

- When two or more nouns represent a compound name of one person or thing, then the compound is thought of as singular and takes a singular verb.

For Example: The horse and carriage is waiting at the door.
Slow and steady wins the race.

- When the subject is the introductory there, the verb agrees with the real subject that follows it.

For Example : There was a cruel king.
There are six teachers in our department.

- A lot of and plenty of take a plural verb when they denote number, they take a singular verb when they denote quantity or amount.

For Example : There is a lot of oil in Assam.
There are a lot of hill stations in our country.
Where are plenty of roses found?
There is plenty of water in the well.

- 'Both' always takes a plural.

For Example : Both the hill stations were simply great.

- A number of means 'several' or 'many' and is therefore always followed by a plural verb.

For Example : *There have been a number of important incidents this year.
A large number of people are waiting to meet the prime minister.*

- A singular collective noun like a herd of cattle, a team of players, a fleet of ships, a troop of soldiers and a bunch of flowers always takes a singular verb.

For Example: *There was a herd of cattle in the middle of the road.
This is a lovely bunch of flowers.
A troop of soldiers is marching through the streets.*

- A dozen takes a plural verb

For Example: There are a dozen shoes in the cupboard.

- A pair of when applies to things like scissors, shoes, trousers, where two components are always thought of together, takes a singular verb.

For Example : A pair of scissors is lying on the table.

- A plural word must take a plural verb.

For Example : *The scissors are in the drawer.
His trousers were very fashionable.*

- Class names such as clothing, footwear, scenery, crockery, fruit, hair, furniture, stationary are singular and must take a singular verb.

For Example: *The furniture here is of the best quality.
Fruit is very good for health.*

- News is always treated as singular so is advice, business and information.

For Example: *The news is that the President will visit our school next week.
This is good advice.*

- Names of certain diseases, sciences and branches of knowledge which end with s are also singular.

For Example: *Mumps is a painful disease.
Mathematics is my favourite subject.*

- Some of or half of take a plural verb if the reference is to number but a singular verb if reference is to amount or quantity.

For Example: *Some of the boys are dishonest.
Half of the books were sold.*

- Many refers to number is thus plural; much refers to amount so is singular.

For Example: *Many of the apples were rotten.
Much of the truth was not told.*

- People, poultry, repairs, clergy, studies, and cattle are always in plural.

For Example: *The people of our town are very educated.
The clergy have arrived.
The cattle were grazing in the field.*

- When a plural number applies to distances, weights, heights or amounts of money, it is taken as a whole and is therefore treated as singular. Thus it takes a singular verb.

For Example: *Thousand miles is a long distance.
One lakh rupees is a lot of money.*

- If the title of a book or the name of a house or a hotel is plural it takes a singular verb since it is only one title or one building.

For Example: The Adventures of Tom Sawyer is an interesting book.

- If two or more singular subjects are preceded by either, either of, neither, neither of, each, each of, everyone, many a, none, none of, nobody or somebody, the verb is the singular.

For Example: *Either Neetu or her brother has won the prize.
Everyone is equal in the eyes of god
Each of the boys has worked well.
Neither of them comes on time.
Somebody has stolen my aunt's purse.
Nobody is to be blamed.*

Literary Terms & Poetic Devices

Imagery is the use of language to represent experiences of the senses --- what can be seen, heard, touched, tasted, and smelt. With vivid, skillful imagery, poets and other writers can evoke deeply felt responses from the reader.

When you find a reference to some person, character, or event—real or fictional, past or present – you have encountered an allusion. It can come from literature, myth, history or even any religious book. Have you heard of the expression ‘sour grapes?’ This expression refers to a fable in which a fox who could not reach a bunch of grapes said they were probably sour anyway.

A figure of speech, in which two basically unlike things are directly compared, usually with like or as, is called a simile. A writer sees and brings out the likeness in the two items in a fresh and clear way.

A metaphor is an implied comparison between things essentially unlike, often with no clue words. It does not use the words like or as. It is not always confined to poetry: it occurs even in daily conversation. You may refer to a studious classmate as a ‘bookworm’ and someone who is speechless may be called ‘tongue-tied.’

In poetry, exaggeration is called hyperbole. In advertising, similar exaggeration is called hype. For example you might read a claim that you can ‘recapture the magic of childhood’ by buying a certain collector’s doll that is a ‘big’ seven inches high. Another good example is ‘I’m so hungry I could eat a bear,’ or ‘He cried his eyes out.’

Alliteration is the repetition of the initial and stressed sounds at the beginning of words or in stressed syllables of words. A common example is tongue twisters. Alliteration is popular in our language (safe and sound, rough and ready, through thick and thin) because it gives pleasure in itself. But it is also used where possible to echo the sense and provide emphasis. It creates melody, establishes mood, calls attention to certain words and points to similarities and contrasts.

Onomatopoeia is the use of words having sounds that suggest their meaning or which imitate the sound associated with them.

Tone is the author’s or poet’s attitude, stated or implied, towards a subject or audience. The tone can be serious, indignant, angry, sad or humorous.

Personification is when human characteristics are assigned to non human things.

Irony is in general, a contrast between what really is and what appears to be. You have probably heard the expression ‘Thanks a lot!’ used sarcastically, spoken in a way to mean, ‘Thanks for – nothing.’ You might have come in from a snowstorm and remarked, ‘Nice day, uh?’ In each case you are saying one thing while meaning another, often emphasizing that meaning by the tone of your voice.

Kitchen Accidents

Anna had cut herself on something sharp when she was cleaning the kitchen floor. It had been very sore, causing her to give a sharp cry. Unfortunately, the wound was in exactly the same place where she had cut herself the day before with a kitchen knife, which had caused a sharp pain in her palm. At the same time her mother had rebuked her for being careless, saying that someone as sharp as Mary should be able to avoid such accidents. Although they loved each other dearly, there was a sharp difference between the personalities of Anna's mother and father, and her father had sympathized with Anna for having hurt herself. This time Anna had cleaned the wound and applied a plaster, which she hoped her mother would not see. She was now drinking some lemonade that was rather sharp and telling her father about her wound, feeling comforted by his concern. However, there was a sharp change of subject when Anna's mother entered the room. Unlike either Anna or her father, she was a sharp dresser and was looking elegant in her business suit. A lawyer, she had just finished a court case in which her client, a jeweler, had been accused of sharp practices. During the case she had been quite sharp with her family because she had been very tired. Now that it was over, and her client found innocent, she was able to relax and apologized to them for her bad temper.

William Shakespeare

In a world where the quality of the art form called "writing" is so often said to be rapidly diminishing, it is important for students of English literature to retain some studies of the true classics, such as Shakespeare. A well-rounded education logically must have a strong foundation in both modern and classical literature, the latter of which an in-depth study of Shakespearean works would more than satisfy. Not only was Shakespeare so well accomplished in his writing skills that he has become an undeniably significant point in the history of literature, but a majority of his works were written on such basic human themes that they will endure for all time and must not be allowed to slip into the tragic oblivion of old age.

By using just the right combination of words, or by conjuring just the right image, Shakespeare authored countless passages and entire plays so powerful, poignant, comedic, tragic, and romantic that many are still being routinely memorized and performed today. Yet the beauty of Shakespeare's talent lies not so much in the basic themes of his works as in the ingenuity with which he painted these portraits of love, power, greed, discrimination, hatred, and despair.

There can therefore be no doubt that substantial knowledge of the works of William Shakespeare is necessary for any education of English literature to be considered complete and well rounded. The extraordinary writing skills with which Shakespeare created his accurate portrayals of human truth have not been rivalled or replicated since his death.

Appendix-1

Selected excerpts from the plays of Shakespeare:

Julius Caesar

- Caesar's growing popularity sparks fear among the tribunes and a conspiracy takes shape with Cassius at its head.
- A storm hits Rome. Cassius recruits Caesar's friend Brutus. Caesar ignores all warnings and goes to the Capitol, where the conspirators stab and kill him.
- Mark Antony volunteers to speak at Caesar's funeral and rouses an angry mob. The new triumvirate and conspirators begin to argue and flee.
- Caesar's ghost visits Brutus. Brutus and Cassius go to war against Mark Antony and Octavius.
- Cassius, thinking his friend Titinius has been captured, kills himself. Brutus wins the day but loses the following battle and kills himself, leaving Antony and Octavius triumphant.

Brutus:

Romans, countrymen, and lovers, hear me for my cause, and be silent, that you may hear. Believe me for mine honour, and have respect to mine honour that you may believe. Censure me in your wisdom, and awake your senses that you may the better judge. If there be any in this assembly, any dear friend of Caesar's, to him I say that Brutus' love to Caesar was no less than his. If then that friend demand why Brutus rose against Caesar, this is my answer: not that I loved Caesar less, but that I loved Rome more. Had you rather Caesar were living, and die all slaves, than that Caesar were dead, to live all free men? As Caesar loved me, I weep for him; as he was fortunate, I rejoice at it; as he was valiant, I honour him; but, as he was ambitious, I slew him.

 There is tears for his love, joy for his fortune, honour for his valour, and death for his ambition. Who is here so base that would be a bondman? If any, speak, for him have I offended. Who is here so rude that would not be a Roman? If any, speak, for him have I offended.
 Who is here so vile that will not love his country? If any, speak; for him have I offended. I pause for a reply.

Mark Antony:

Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears;
 I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.
 The evil that men do lives after them;
 The good is oft interred with their bones;
 So let it be with Caesar. The noble Brutus
 Hath told you Caesar was ambitious:
 If it were so, it was a grievous fault,
 And grievously hath Caesar answer'd it.
 Here, under leave of Brutus and the rest--
 For Brutus is an honourable man;
 So are they all, all honourable men--
 Come I to speak in Caesar's funeral.
 He was my friend, faithful and just to me:
 But Brutus says he was ambitious;
 And Brutus is an honourable man.
 He hath brought many captives home to Rome
 Whose ransoms did the general coffers fill:

Did this in Caesar seem ambitious?
 When that the poor have cried, Caesar hath wept:
 Ambition should be made of sterner stuff:
 Yet Brutus says he was ambitious;
 And Brutus is an honourable man.
 You all did see that on the Lupercal
 I thrice presented him a kingly crown,
 Which he did thrice refuse: was this ambition?
 Yet Brutus says he was ambitious;
 And, sure, he is an honourable man.
 I speak not to disprove what Brutus spoke,
 But here I am to speak what I do know.
 You all did love him once, not without cause:
 What cause withholds you then, to mourn for him?
 O judgment! thou art fled to brutish beasts,
 And men have lost their reason. Bear with me;
 My heart is in the coffin there with Caesar,
 And I must pause till it come back to me. [He weeps]

A Comedy of Errors

ABBESS

And thereof came it that the man was mad:
 The venom clamours of a jealous woman
 Poison more deadly than a mad dog's tooth.
 It seems, his sleeps were hinder'd by thy railing,
 And thereof comes it that his head is light.
 Thou say'st his meat was sauc'd with thy up-braidings:
 Unquiet meals make ill digestions;
 Thereof the raging fire of fever bred:
 And what's a fever but a fit of madness?

Thou say'st his sports were hinder'd by thy brawls:
 Sweet recreation barr'd, what doth ensue
 But moody moping, and dull melancholy,
 Kinsman to grim and comfortless despair,
 And at her heels a huge infectious troop
 Of pale distemperatures and foes to life?
 In food, in sport, and life-preserving rest
 To be disturb'd, would mad or man or beast:
 The consequence is then, thy jealous fits
 Have scar'd thy husband from the use of wits.
 V i 75

LUCIANA

And may it be that you have quite forgot
 A husband's office? Shall, Antipholus,
 Even in the spring of love, thy love-springs rot?
 Shall love, in building, grow so ruinous?
 If you did wed my sister for her wealth,
 Then, for her wealth's sake use her with more kindness:
 Or, if you like elsewhere, do it by stealth;
 Muffle your false love with some show of blindness;
 Let not my sister read it in your eye;
 Be not thy tongue thy own shame's orator;
 Look sweet, speak fair, become disloyalty;
 Apparel vice like virtue's harbinger;
 Bear a fair presence, though your heart be tainted;
 Teach sin the carriage of a holy saint;
 Be secret-false: what need she be acquainted?
 What simple thief brags of his own attaint?
 'Tis double wrong to truant with your bed,
 And let her read it in thy looks at board:
 Shame hath a bastard fame, well managed;
 Ill deeds are doubled with an evil word.
 Alas! poor women, make us but believe,
 Being compact of credit, that you love us;
 Though others have the arm, show us the sleeve;
 We in your motion turn, and you may move us.
 Then, gentle brother, get you in again;
 Comfort my sister, cheer her, call her wife:
 'Tis holy sport to be a little vain,
 When the sweet breath of flattery conquers strife.

Tempest

- Prospero, the former duke of Milan, is living on an island with his daughter Miranda after his brother Antonio usurped the dukedom.
- Prospero's enemies in the royal party are brought ashore to the island after a tempest.
- Ariel, a spirit that obeys Prospero, has created the tempest and dispersed the royal party around the island.
- Ferdinand, the Prince of Naples, finds Miranda and falls in love with her.
- The King restores Prospero's dukedom, Prospero pardons his enemies, and Ferdinand and Miranda are to be married.

FERDINAND

There be some sports are painful, and their labour
 Delight in them sets off. Some kinds of baseness
 Are nobly undergone, and most poor matters
 Point to rich ends. This my mean task
 Would be as heavy to me as odious, but
 The mistress which I serve quickens what's dead
 And makes my labours pleasures. (III.i.1-7)

PROSPERO

Now my charms are all o'erthrown,
 And what strength I have's mine own,
 Which is most faint. Now, 'tis true,
 I must be here confined by you,
 Or sent to Naples. Let me not,
 Since I have my dukedom got
 And pardoned the deceiver, dwell
 In this bare island by your spell,
 But release me from my bands
 With the help of your good hands.
 Gentle breath of yours my sails

Must fill, or else my project fails,
 Which was to please. Now I want
 Spirits to enforce, art to enchant,
 And my ending is despair,
 Unless I be relieved by prayer,
 Which pierces so that it assaults
 Mercy itself and frees all faults.
 As you from crimes would pardoned be,
 Let your indulgence set me free.

Macbeth

- Scottish general Macbeth is told by a trio of witches that he will become Thane of Cawdor and then King of Scotland. King Duncan names Macbeth Thane of Cawdor.
- At Lady Macbeth's prompting, Macbeth kills Duncan then murders and frames the servants. Macbeth is crowned king.
- Macbeth orders the suspicious Banquo and his son killed, but Fleance survives. The witches make a number of ambiguous predictions that give Macbeth confidence.
- Macbeth has Macduff's family executed. A vengeful Macduff joins with Malcolm in a plot to overthrow Macbeth. Lady Macbeth is overcome with remorse and kills herself.
- Macduff and Malcolm march on Macbeth and the witches' prophecies prove true as Macbeth is killed by Macduff and Malcolm is crowned king.

GENTLEWOMEN:

Why, it stood by her. She has light by her continually. 'Tis her command.

DOCTOR:

You see her eyes are open.

GENTLEWOMEN:

Ay, but their sense is shut.

DOCTOR:

What is it she does now? Look, how she rubs her hands.

GENTLEWOMEN:

It is an accustomed action with her to seem thus washing her hands. I have known her continue in this a quarter of an hour.

LADY MACBETH:

Yet here's a spot.

DOCTOR:

Hark! She speaks. I will set down what comes from her, to satisfy my remembrance the more strongly.

LADY MACBETH:

Out, damned spot! Out, I say!-One, two. Why, then, 'tis time to do't. Hell is murky!-Fie, my lord, fie! A soldier, and afeard? What need we fear who knows it, when none can call our power to account?- Yet who would have thought the old man to have had so much blood in him.

DOCTOR:

Do you mark that?

LADY MACBETH:

The thane of Fife had a wife. Where is she now?- What, will these hands never be clean?- No more o' that. You mar all with this starting.

DOCTOR:

Go to, go to. You have known what you should not.

GENTLEWOMEN:

She has spoke what she should not, I am sure of that. Heaven knows what she has known.

LADY MACBETH:

Here's the smell of blood still. All the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand. Oh, Oh, Oh!

DOCTOR:

What a sigh is there! The heart is sorely charged.

Macbeth's soliloquy:

She should have died hereafter;

There would have been a time for such a word.

--Tomorrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow,

Creeps in this petty pace from day to day,

To the last syllable of recorded time;

And all our yesterdays have lighted fools

The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle!

Life's but a waking shadow, a poor player

That struts and frets his hour upon the stage

And then is heard no more. It is a tale

Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury

Signifying nothing.
